REMARKABLE POINTS ON THE MARKET

The market saw the third gain in a row with strong sign of cash flow joining in, despite foreign investors' selling. The liquidity increased from the morning with positive sign from real estate, construction, chemical, and some individual blue-chips. The market leaned on buyers, but the pressure from other pillar groups like retail, oil, and banking made the market being in red in the first half of the afternoon. However, at the end, the demand increased again so main indexes reversed and closed in green. In which, the focus was on the gain of real estate and securities.

TECHNICAL POINT OF VIEW

In technical term, VN-Index saw the third gain in a row. The volume increased to above 10 and 20-session average, showing positive cash flow. Not just that, the index surpassed MA5 pressure, and MA5 saw positive differentiation from MA20, showing that short-term recovery is still there. Moreover, MACD and RSI increased positively, supporting the index's gain and opened a chance of moving to challenge resistant target around 1,150-1,160 points (peak in October). For HNX, HNX-Index saw similar situation. It also gained to above MA50 and stayed above MA20, showing that short-term recovering trend is still there and the index might move to challenge resistant level of 240 points (peak in October). In general, the market is still on short-term recovering trend after the gain on November 22. Therefore, investors might use the shakes to join in with short-term surfs. In which, having priority on good-fundamental codes with growth prospect that can attract strong cash flow.
