REMARKABLE POINTS ON THE MARKET

Vietnam stock market prolonged gloomy days as main indexes struggled within a small range with lack of liquidity. The market showed that droppers are in control. However, with some blue-chips being positive, focusing on banking and industrial park real estate, so VN-Index gained slightly in the last few minutes. Foreign trade showed positive sign with another strong net selling today, seeing the 7th net selling week in a row.

TECHNICAL POINT OF VIEW

In technical term, VN-Index saw the 4th gain in a row. The volume stayed below 10 and 20-session average, showing that the trade is cautious. Not just that, the index hasn't surpassed MA20 pressure, and ADX was above 24 with +DI being below -DI, showing that short-term dropping risk is still hasn't shaken off and the gain might only be technical with close resistant around 1,108 points (MA20). Moreover, the index created Doji gaining candle, showing that the gaining trend has slowed down and MACD dropped to below Signal, supporting selling sign, showing that the index might soon see correcting pressure again to support level around 1,073 points. For HNX, HNX-Index dropped again. The index created Doji candle after previous gain, and closed below MA20, showing that gaining trend weakened with correcting pressure again. Therefore, investors should consider selling part of surfing positions and keep a reasonable weight to prepare for the change on general market.
