REMARKABLE POINTS ON THE MARKET

The market still saw correcting pressure on Friday. Main indexes dropped from the morning as many Asia indexes also dropped strongly. Bottom-catching sign appeared on many blue-chips in the afternoon so VN-Index recovered to reference. However, the cash flow was still weak and the indexes quickly dropped again at the end. The market showed complete control from droppers. Selling pressure increased which also pushed the liquidity up to above average. A rare light today was foreign investors that started buying again.

TECHNICAL POINT OF VIEW

In technical term, VN-Index saw the 4th drop in a row. It closed below MA200 slightly but still stayed in demand level of 1,160-1,190 points. At the same time, there was sign of Spinning candle with higher volume, the candle range still dropped while selling pressure increased, showing possibility of bottom-catching cash flow. In general, we think that the sign is still supporting possibility of seeing t+ recovery. For HNX-Index, struggling sign is not as clear but the index still stayed in demand level of 220-225, also showing possibility of recovering at this level. General strategy is to wait for the recover to restructure the portfolio, recommended weight is low-average for investors with high cash weight and can take risk, might consider catching bottom with low weight on the codes with over selling drop to support level.
