REMARKABLE POINTS ON THE MARKET

The market gained further on Tuesday but the gain tended to drop at the end. VN-Index opened with a gap-up of 5 points and stayed in green in the whole session. However, the groups differentiated strongly. Only a few groups could gain consistently like steel, technology, oil, seaport, and minerals. On the other side, selling pressure on blue-chips wasn't strong. The market was balance with slightly more droppers. For liquidity, trading value also dropped but still stayed above average, showing that the cash flow was still excited. Foreign investors saw positive sign as the net selling was very low today.

TECHNICAL POINT OF VIEW

In technical term, VN-Index gained further but the gain was weak. There was sign of a Spinning struggling candle when trying to escape collecting level of 1,250-1,285. The demand wasn't strong, so the index couldn't close above this level, but with current signs, we still think that this level will soon be surpassed. The index might shake for another 1-2 sessions before moving to break peak level. For HNX-Index, it dropped again. There was sign of a small head-withdraw candle, showing selling pressure, the volume was low, mainly because of low demand in most trading time. The index might correct further after this sign, but expects to not be negative, might break collecting triangle. General strategy might be maintaining high-average weight, expecting differentiation, focusing on Midcap; having priority on strong codes that surpass peak level before the market like Technology, Aviation, Thermal Power, Retail, Fertilizer, Textile, Oil, and Sea transport, or the groups that gained afterward that are relatively improving the health like Construction, Real estate, Industrial Park, Steel, and Securities, Power, Insurance, and Plastic.
